

A Pilots Journey Log

Flying the magnificent coast of British Columbia is a challenging occupation. Meet Daryl Smith, a logger turned bush pilot, who learned to fly, and immediately owned his own little airline and was scud-running the coast with the best of them. During the most significant period of change in Canadas aviation industry, Smith built his one-plane bush operation into Pacific Coastal Airlines with 25 modern commuter prop-jets. A story of adventure and survival in the skies and in the corporate boardroom.
