

Wrestling in the Daylight: A Rabbi's Path of Palestinian Solidarity

In 2006, Rabbi Brant Rosen launched a blog called Shalom Rav, in which he reflected on various social-justice issues. In 2008, Israel launched a harsh attack against Gaza-and caused Rosen to deeply question his lifelong liberal Zionism. Unlike the biblical Jacob, who wrestled with his conscience in the dark of night, Rabbi Rosen chose to wrestle in the daylight, which he did through many deep, thoughtful interactions on his blog. In Wrestling in the Daylight Rabbi Rosen presents the most piercing of these discussions. By including the arguments of his online critics along with his own, he takes readers into controversies in the heart of the American Jewish community. The Foreword is written by Adam Horowitz, Co-Editor of the current affairs website Mondoweiss.net.
