

Bill Self: At Home in the Phog

“At that point, I realized I was probably happier for the people closest to me than I was for myself. Because it was at that point when I finally realized how much it meant to them.” This statement, made by KU head coach Bill Self, illustrates his feelings on winning the Final Four and solidifying his team’s place in the national championship game. In his new book, Bill Self: At Home in the Phog, Self and those who know him best offer an inside look at his journey into becoming one of the game’s most respected and most sought-after coaches. Self tells how he is living the dream “not only is he a head coach, he was also selected to be the steward of what James Naismith and Phog Allen created for the University of Kansas basketball program. Self’s book captures the excitement of reaching the pinnacle “leading the Jayhawks on to a national title. He shares minute-by-minute details of the contest that sent KU to the national title game and offers insight into one of the greatest national championship comebacks ever. Bill Self has established himself as one of college basketball’s best. In his first trip to the Final Four in 2008, Self claimed the national title. Self has been to 10 straight NCAA tournaments and advanced to the Elite Eight five times in that span, while directing three different programs. His Kansas teams have won four straight Big 12 regular-season titles and three straight Big 12 Tournament crowns. Self’s coaching experience, combined with co-author John Rohde's expertise as a sportswriter for The Oklahoman, unite to tell the powerful story of teamwork and one coach's quest to lead a college basketball team to greatness.
