

Silver Pitchers and Independence (Annotated): A Centennial Love Story

This collection of short love stories by Louisa May Alcott will not disappoint her fans. Included in this volume are: Silver Pitchers, the story of three popular girls who take a stand against drinking by forming a temperance club; Annas Whim, a love story; Transcendental Wild Oats, the satire of her father's utopian experiment; The Romance of a Summers Day, the romance of a young lady seeking independence; My Rococco Watch, an account of desire gone humorously wrong; By The River: A Legend of the Assabet, a charming and fatalistic tale of a young poet; Lettys Tramp, another charming tale of friendship and love; Scarlet Stockings, a Civil War romance; and Independence: A Centennial Love Story, which is precisely what the title suggests. Alcott wrote the stories in 1875, the Centennial year of American Revolutions beginning, and have a strong theme of independence within romantic love.
