

Dear God, an Open Letter

Do you believe in God? If the answer is Yes, you probably haven't really thought much about it. If the answer is No, you probably have thought about it a quite a bit, but you may be rejecting a cultural construct as much or more than the presence of a supernatural deity. I've been thinking about it for 60 years and I still have many more questions than answers. Some questions have answers and some do not. Some questions can be answered within our reality, and some questions require answers from a supernatural reality, if it exists. Should you care about what other people believe and what their religions say they believe? In the past, maybe not so much, it used to be a big world. Now the world is not so big, there is not much space between cultures these days, the natural resources of our world are diminishing rapidly, our environment is changing rapidly, and our populations are expanding rapidly. I think it is very important now, at this flash point in the history of our species, for us to ask questions about what we believe and why we believe it. This is very important because what we collectively believe as religious or secular cultures that govern nations may save or destroy the future of humanity on our Earth. Yeah, that's a very big deal, and I'm certainly not the one to competently explore it, but I have a lot of questions and I have to try. And there is no more knowledgeable entity to ask about these things than God, if he/she/it exists. So I've written a series of letters to God to express my doubts, my views, and my ponders on God and religion in our world today. There are seven letters, ebooks actually, one for every day of the week that God is credited with creating. The topics I explore in my questions and conversations with God are the timeless, universal ones; Sunday, Belief/Disbelief; Monday, Our Fragile Earth; Tuesday, Freedom and Religion; Wednesday, Perception of God, Faith, Skepticism, Demons, Angels; Thursday, Biology and Evolution; Friday, Sex and Gender; and Saturday, Religions, Origins, Belief, Doubt. My letters are not comprehensive, scholarly works, mainly just the pondering of an aging marine biologist. Hopefully you will find them interesting and thought provoking.
