

No Ordinary Lives: One Mans Surprising Journey into the Heart of America

Twenty years ago, cub re-porter David Johnson had an idea for a column: hed pick a name at random from the telephone book and write a story on the person who answered his call. Visiting journalist Charles Kuralt overheard his plan and proclaimed it the best idea hed ever heard-and the popular column Everybody Has a Story was born. Today, over 800 Americans have shared their personal stories in the pages of the Lewiston Morning Tribune, and for David Johnson, the trip of two decades has taught him lessons he never imagined. In this book, youll meet many of the people whose perspectives changed Davids life. Not only have they reminded him of lifes universal ingredients, the hopes and dreams we all share, but theyve commented, each in their idiosyncratic way, on what is truly important.
