

An Inheritance for the Birds (Love Letters)

Make the ducks happy and win an estate! Mr. Christopher Kit Winnington can't believe the letter from his late great-aunt's solicitor. In order to inherit her estate, he must win a contest against her companion, Miss Angela Stratton. Whoever makes his great-aunt's pet ducks happy wins. A contest: What a cork-brained idea. This Miss Stratton is probably a sly spinster who camouflaged her grasping nature from his good-natured relative. There is no way he will let the estate go to a usurper. Angela never expected her former employer to name her in her will. Most likely, this Mr. Winnington is a trumped-up jackanapes who expects her to give up without a fight. Well, she is made of sterner stuff. The ducks quack in avian bliss while Kit and Angela do their utmost to make the ducks--and themselves--happy. A sweet, traditional Regency romance, a clean romance. And there are ducks. Lots of ducks. Quack. I write in the style of my favorite author, Barbara Metzger. If you like her Regency comedies, you should enjoy mine.
