

The Trouble with Hawaii Duet (The Trouble Series Duets Book 4)

This duet contains the stories -- From THE TROUBLE WITH SURFERS Sophia Drake is a prosecutor who works way too hard and has lost the ability to have fun. When she has finally decided she needs a break and needs to live a little she doesn't think twice, flies to Hawaii. When she meets surf instructor Brandon Joffery and he talks her into lessons, she knows there is going to be no way she can focus on keeping upright on a board when the surfer is too amazing and yummy for words. This trip is going to go on the record books. And paradise might just offer more than relaxation. She might just learn to love and live. Brandon Joffery has left the hustle and bustle of NYC behind and is living the dream in Hawaii teaching the tourist to surf and enjoy life. When he spots pretty Sophia bobbing on the water looking totally lost and then learning she has no idea how to surf he offers her free lessons. She's clearly scared to death of not only learning how to surf but also afraid of life and for the first time in his life he wants to protect a woman and get to know her. She's quirky and funny and perfect. Maybe he will be able to talk her into surfing more than just waves, maybe he'll be able to talk her into taking a chance on him. From THE TROUBLE WITH SAILORS Aspyn Cartwright and her fiancé, Martin, just broke up after being together for a long time. Just, as in twelve hours ago ... that morning. Seeing her devastation, her BFFs take her on a girls night out, to help her forget her troubles for a few hours. But when Aspyn sees Martin, her heart is torn out all over again. Not only does he not seem phased by their break-up, hes got another woman on his arm--and hes kissing her in a way that tells Aspyn he knows this woman intimately. Very intimately. Reluctantly, Aspyn lets her friends talk her into a much needed vacation to Hawaii. She has every intention of soaking up the sun, and forgetting Martin. She's going to rest, relax, and have fun. What she isn't counting on is being chaperoned, nor the instant attraction she feels for him. This sailor is trouble with a capital T. Jesse Spencer is ready for some down time after many long days on-board his naval ship, which is based out of Pearl Harbor. Hes not going far though--no better place for R&R than the exotic Hawaiian Islands--surf, sand, sea, and sexy Polynesian girls. When friends ask him to look out for Aspyn, he thinks it's going to be an easy thing to do. After all he's not looking for romance, and there are few women who understand the life of a sailor in the Navy. She's everything hes not expecting, and everything he finds he wants. Trouble is, he has his work cut out for him--she lives on the mainland, and he won't always have shore duty. Good thing, Jesse loves a challenge.
