

Meditations On Bad Faith: An Exploration of Dogma and an Exhortation to Unitarian Universalism

What started as material for a religious oriented blog became my first attempt at a full philosophical collection of essays. The first meditations are short but developed statements on what I believe to be the most fundamental problems with religious faith. I later discuss the concept of Hell as a moral failure and include a short review of Stefan Molyneuxs Against the Gods, attempting a defense of agnosticism. For anyone wrestling with the concept of faith in the absence of Christian dogma, this work lays a groundwork for spiritual growth. Half of all proceeds from this book will be donated to the Unitarian Universalist Church of Coastal Georgia in support of their social justice initiative and their unflinching service to the LGBTQ community.
