

Sins of the FATHER

This book takes the god of the bible to task for his many crimes and atrocities against humanity. As one who has walked by faith for the vast majority of my life, I explain why I can no longer do so. The bible: the only source of information about the warier god, Jehovah, is not a magic book, handed down from the heavens. The doctrines taught from the bible are a garbled mess of confusion and inconsistency. Finally, the god of the bible must answer for the presence of sin in the world and the suffering of the innocent. It is insufficient to blame humans for sin as, according to the bible, sin preexisted the creation of humanity. I demand to know why we are being held responsible for something that was clearly not our fault. Some have chosen to ignore the barriers to faith and pretend that everything is just fine. I can no longer pretend that the god or message of the bible makes any rational sense. To quote Mark Twain, Faith is believing in what you know aint so. I have let go of the belief in things I know aint so. This book highlights some of the reasoning and research that led me to the end of my faith journey.
