

In With the Keys: sequel to A History of a Childhood

Alternately denying and facing his alcohol addiction the author undertakes a career in psychiatric nursing in Sydney in the 1970s. His marriage has failed and he flounders at first as he finds a place in the sexual revolution and house sharing culture of the times. The reader is taken on a romp through his adventures - and misadventures - eventually leaving Sydney and "doing a geographical"™. The book gives us glimpses of how he found a new life and gained insight through many experiences, trials and errors. In a life spinning out of control, the author's™ alcoholism and irresponsible lifestyle, intersected by sobering realisations, lead him to decide to become a psychiatric nurse. Better inside with the keys than without them!
