

GODLESS -- Living a Valuable Life Beyond Beliefs (Volume 6)

Beliefs divide us, Values unite us. The contemporary history of religious and political ideologies is bloody. From the Nazi Holocaust to beheadings by Islamic Jihadist terrorists, fanatics have divided the world into believers and heretics. Their propaganda has persuaded followers to torture and slaughter unbelievers. The cure for the pathology of fanatical beliefs is to discard religious doctrines and political ideologies. Let shared values be the guides of personal and policy decisions. Godless advocates a pragmatic middle way to counter both fundamentalist extremism and secular cynicism through community connectivity and activism. Godless -- Living a Valuable Life beyond Beliefs begins as a memoir reaching back into the authors Puritan family history and the Salem witch trials. Rasleys worldwide travels and cross-cultural interests have led him far from his small-town roots in the Presbyterian Church and Republican Party. He discovered interesting and surprising commonalities between two communities with which he has been involved, an Indianapolis Quaker Meeting and the Rai people of Basa village, Nepal. These very different communities on opposite sides of the world share fundamental values in their tolerant, peaceful, and simple approach to life. Godless blends what Rasley has learned from the Basa Rai and Quakers with the classic American philosophy of Pragmatism to describe a values-based way of living. It encourages a spiritual response of awe and gratitude for being alive and conscious in this wonderful shared world. Godless addresses a deeply serious subject in an engaging conversational style. It advocates guiding our lives by positive values and pragmatic decision-making rather than superstitious or irrational beliefs. Godless recommends a modern pragmatic version of the Judeo-Christian ethic of loving self and neighbor. It does not encourage readers to abandon their religious communities, but suggests a way to worship focused on awe and gratitude. It doesn't advocate an end to political parties, but proposes a pragmatic method of conflict resolution to replace the political gridlock of divisive ideological politics.

Jeff Rasley's undergraduate studies at the University of Chicago combined concentrations in Philosophy, Religion, and Politics. He received a J.D. from Indiana University and M.Div. from Christian Theological Seminary. He teaches a class on philanthropy and nonprofit organizations in the Honors Program at Butler University. Other books by Jeff Rasley - Bringing Progress to Paradise; What I Got from Giving to a Mountain Village in Nepal describes an astounding Himalayan adventure which becomes a critical reflection on the damage charitable giving can do to the intended beneficiaries. The rest of the story of Basa Village, is told in Light in the Mountains - Namaste, Rakshi, and Electricity in a Himalayan Village and its prequel India - Nepal Himalayas In the Moment (an honest Three Cups of Tea). snow and mountains and onto sandy beaches and swaying palms, check out the lyrical Islands in my Dreams ^ ^ ^ For a change of pace curl up with False Prophet. Its a romantic mystery and inspirational tale based on a legal case Rasley handled in his 30-year Indianapolis law practice. ^ ^ If you enjoy sports action, history, humor, romance, set during the cultural revolution of the 60s, check out MONSTERS OF THE MIDWAY 1969: Sex, Drugs, Rock n Roll, Viet Nam, Civil Rights, and Football. ^ ^ Pilgrimage: ^ Sturgis to Wounded Knee and Back Home, a Memoir begins with a motorcycle road trip to the Bacchanalia of Sturgis Bike Week, then takes a detour to the massacre at Wounded Knee, and crosses the ocean to a remote village in the Himalayas. Reconciliation is found back home in Indiana. ^ ^ ^ Heros Journey - John Ritter, the Chip Hilton of Goshen, Indiana; a Memoir is a meditation on what makes a real hero and a nostalgic reminiscence about childhood heroes.
