

Moonlight Rebel, Moonlight Lover: Two American Revolution Historicals

Two full novels from Marie Ferrarella's historical series on the Revolution MOONLIGHT REBEL The Countess and the Barbarian! She needed a safe haven Coming to the colonies and living on a Virginia plantation in the midst of a brewing revolution was not the life Krystyna would have chosen. But she had been offered no choice when she fled her native Poland, just ahead of spies still looking for her. Why, her host could even be one himself! Krystyna hoped not, because when she took a good look at his powerfully taut body and fierce blue eyes, she wanted to share her most intimate treasures with him! But was he really the man he seemed to be? MOONLIGHT LOVER Sin-Jin and the Irish Spitfire! Rachel needed nothing but her brother and a good musket to hold off the men who came at her like hungry wolves--until Sin-Jin Lawrence taught her what love was really for. In the bitter wake of devastating tragedy, Rachel O'Rourke and her brother had fled Ireland to seek refuge on the shores of Colonial America. But Rachel could never forget how the British had destroyed her family, and knew she hated them until she died. Then a tall, blond-haired stranger showed up on the doorstep of their Virginia home. His name was St. John Lawrence, he was obviously English and far too handsome for his own good. And now all the enflamed Englishman wanted to do was draw her lush curves close against him, kiss her until she begged for more--and possess her forever in love's ultimate
