

The Public Confessions of a Middle-Aged Woman

Enter the world of Susan Lilian Townsend - sun-worshippers, work-shy writers, garden-centre lovers and those in search of a good time all welcome. Over the last decade, Sue Townsend has written a monthly column for Sainsburys Magazine, which covers everything from hosepipe bans and Spanish restaurants to writers block and the posh middle-aged woman she once met whod never heard of Winnie-the-Pooh. Collected together now for the first time, they form a set of pieces from one of Britains most popular and acclaimed writers that is funny, perceptive and touching.
